Objectives of the Course :

Revealing the link between the perpetrator and the crime constitutes the basis of criminal investigations. Within the framework of today's human rights, there has been a rapid transformation from the principle of "Suspect to Evidence" to the principle of "Evidence to Defendant". Especially since early 2000, the tendency towards scientific investigation methods have increased both in the judicial system and in law enforcement. Both relevant institutions and universities have made serious investments in this direction.
